

Scott was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, where he worked as an electronics engineer before deciding to travel the world. His journeys took him to live in incredible places and experience life changing ethos before finally settling down in Milan, Italy.

He has been an independent English teacher since 2001 transmitting his unique methods to great success to whoever has the desire to learn his native language from schools to universities, the military to footballers and VIPs.

Fluent in Italian and a recently qualified Cisco CCNP engineer he also works as a translator for Tech companies and gives lectures on website building in English.